This has been a great day for the citizens of Louisville, the people of the South and the thousands of visitors from all parts of this broad land who are here. It has been the opening day of the great Exposition. For the fourth time the friends of the arts and sciences, of industry and enterprise, and of the development of the natural resources of the South and West, have gathered in this may have had about its readiness for in- place. preparing an address on Revenue spection, or whatever doubt may have been entertained in regard to the realization of the of the promises made by rhe mangement, all have been dispelled. After the opening, address ascended the stage and gave one of the exhibition.

In the evening Prof. Damrosch gave another of his inmitable concerts. Let your readers imangine a well-trained orchestra of sixly-two persons under the boracy of Lawrence county, Ky., is direction of one of the most distingushed hereby called to meet at the Court musicians of the day, in a magnificent hall lighted by brifliant electric lamps and superbly decorated, making grand music, and they can form some klen of the brilliant and interesting character of Sept. 8, 1886, for the purpose of prominent features of the Exposition will nominating a candidate to repre- prove the most interesting, but judging from the enthusiam of to-day and to-night it is fair to conclude that the musical accommodations provided for the visitors will prove to thousands the most anteresting if not the most profitable. Since Ch'n Dem, Ex. Com. Lawrence co. a year ago the Music Hall has been converted into a magnificent concert room, Louisa's prospects for shortly be- with a handsome stage and elevated important purchases on Elkhorn subject of general and widspread recreek; a fact which is regarded as mare and notice. Prof Damrosch's strong evid noe of the business in-instruction of his father, and at his death the son became the director of several Several enterprises which point musical societies, and assistant director tended his reputation, and was followed by a successful pear in New York. His re-engagement for the Southern Exposition of 1886 is a further testimonial of merit and popularity.

But this is not all. No exposition in the world has its visitors such music as has been provided by the Southern Expoin Louisa at 1 o'clock, Sat sition. Most of the exposition have deurday, September 11th, 1886, for the pended on local talent for their music, but purpose of selecting delegates to the from the first this company determined general convention which meets in that the musical teature should be superior, at whatever cost. In addition to Damrosch's orchestra, the company have for the fourth time secured the services of Cappa's wonderful military band, which after Damrosch's concerts are over, will give concerts for four weeks. This is the celebrated New York Seventh Regiment Band of forty performers, and will give two concerts each day for four weeks. Cappa and his band are very popular here, and their coming is looked forward to with delight by those who enoy military more than orchestra music.

This prusical feature I have dwelt on just now in preference to all others because thousands will come to this Exposition for the music alone, because it will not only be first-class and of the highest order, but it will be free to all visitors. Think of it-nearly one hundred grand concerts to those who hold season tickets and two concerts for every admission.
